All About the Story Grid

Compiled by Nicole Wilbur

The Books

The Story Grid by Shawn Coyne:

Pride and Prejudice: Story Grid Edition annotated by Shawn Coyne

The Podcasts

The Story Grid Podcast: The flag-ship original podcast where Shawn Coyne works with Tim Grahl on his first novel. They go scene by scene, talking about what works and what doesn't work - full scenes are even included!

Where to start? Start with Episode 3 (Diving Deep into Genre)

If you like it, episodes 3-23 seem to teach the core

(i.e. what was covered in the book)

Other standouts:

Episode 28: First draft is done, now what?

Episodes 167-176: The Masterwork Experiment

Episodes 52-53: How to Write a Great Love Story

Episodes 81-82: The Foolscap Story Grid

Story Grid Editors Roundtable Podcast: An analysis of popular movies for story lessons. Listen to the movies you love or the genre you're writing in.

My favourites:

Episode 60: Love Actually (of course!!)

Episode 91: It's a Wonderful Life Episode 77: Crazy Rich Asians

Episode 61: Action - The Hunger Games

Story Grid Showrunners Podcast: An analysis of popular TV shows for story lessons. No suggestions as I've never actually listened to it (I haven't seen any of the shows).

The Website

Genre - start here: 1. Convetions & Obligatory Scenes 2. Five Leaf Clover 3. Genres of Writing

Then read about the specific genre(s) you'll be writing in:

- Action Genre
- Horror Genre
- Crime Genre
- Western Genre
- Thriller Genre
- War Genre
- Society Genre
- Love Genre

- Performance Genre
- Fantasy Genre
- Internal Genre
- Worldview Genre
- Status Genre
